Projects

2022 - present

Munchkin Fallout

Munchkin fallout is a board game (3-6 players) that I and my friends enjoyed playing. I can say that it has become one of the additional fervors of interest in programming. I remember how there was a very big desire to write this game. With a friend, we decided to bring it to the web. It's been a little bit of a challenge for me since this is my first major project. I have been writing over 500 lines of code per day since then. Although it's not complete yet I am very proud to present you this project.

My part featured:

- Building the structure of the application
- Build all of the Front-End
- Interface design using Photoshop
- Developing application using JavaScript and React.js
- Development of web components according to layouts using flexbox/grid and CSS and styled-components

2022

Phonebook App

This project was created as the final homework on the course. The application contains the functionality of user registrations and the ability to record contacts on a personal page. The general state is implemented through the Redux Toolkit. All requests to the server go through createAsyncThunk, using Axios and this is all CRUD operations. React Router was also involved in the implementation of private and public routes.
